ABSTRACT

A utility line hanger apparatus is described which includes a hanger body formed into a partially closed loop with opposed loop ends spaced adjacent one another to form an access opening where a gate is provided to engage the loop ends to selectively close the access opening. First and second mounting members are provided on the hanger body to facilitate attachment of the hanger to a support remote from the loop ends.

2